This is one of five identical warehouses built in 1943 between the Western Pacific Railroad tracks and the spur line. This and #2224 are now the only two extant. Both buildings contain 9600 square feet and were built by H & D for $16,000.00 each from plan WB-25-24, type "Temporary," "Warehouse A.C.," "W-H-E-T."

Each warehouse has a rectangular plan measuring 50 feet by 192 feet. The foundations and floors are concrete. The walls are wood framed and the roof is trussed. Wall sheathing consists of tarpaper rolls, battened in place. The gabled roofs have rolled asphalt roofing, still in place. Along the ridges of each warehouse are four, louvered, monitor vents. Each wall of the warehouses has a few 9-pane window units. The doors facing the railroad spur are heavy, sliding units made of diagonal wood siding.

Inside, the warehouses have one large storage room with a small office and restroom at one end. In addition to heaters and lights, each building has a fire alarm system. On building 2219, some tarpaper has been torn away from the exterior walls, exposing the horizontal wood sheathing beneath. The building appears to be structurally sound. It has been leased recently to Anaconda Copper.
